DETAILED ACTION

The indicated allowability of claim 49 is withdrawn since, upon further consideration, it has been determined that allowability was based on an overly narrow interpretation of the claim. Specifically, the claim does not require configuration for starting the engine in both forward and reverse directions.

The finality of the rejection of the last Office action is withdrawn and the amendment is entered in order to enter new grounds of rejection as set forth below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 49 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sieber (US 6,799,547 B2). As disclosed at column 7, lines 35-67, cylinder No. 1 and cylinder No. 3 are selected and fired so as to cause reverse rotation, which is "independently of the normal operating stroke cycles" to the extent required by claim 48, given the broadest reasonable interpretation pursuant to MPEP §§ 2111 and 2111.01. Because forward and reverse starting are alternatively claimed, only one is required for anticipation.

The rejection could be overcome by amending the last two lines of claim 49 to read "wherein the starting module is configured to start the engine selectively in either forward or reverse".
